

I met King Haakon VII, and he helped me with my plan

But Captain Scott's expedition was already sailing for the South Pole

So I sent my brother a telegram

The ship's name was the "Fram", and this means "forward"

When we stopped in Madeira I told them the truth because they don't know where we are really going

Leon sent a telegram to Scott, hahahahaha

Fram won't arrive first, they started moving

The next morning, we took 6 men and 16 dogs and climbed the Devil's Balroom, the coldest point on the Earth

We were the first men alive to arrive at the South Pole

I was at the bottom of the world

We called the area "Polheim", this means home on the pole

Do you want a cigar?

This man is crazy, we are in the South Pole, it's too cold

Hi Scott

The telegram was a joke, you started moving earlier, aaaaaaaahhhhh!

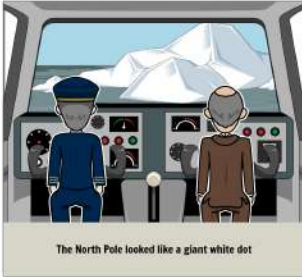

Do you want a cigar now?

Ok

Back to home I had an idea

I'm going to fly to the North Pole in a airship

The North Pole looked like a giant white dot

I was the first man to see the North and the South Pole

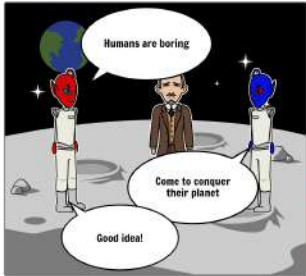

Raald Amundsen disappeared on 18th June, 1928

His disappearance is still a mystery today, but I think he was captured by aliens

Who are you? Go out from my comic!

Humans are boring

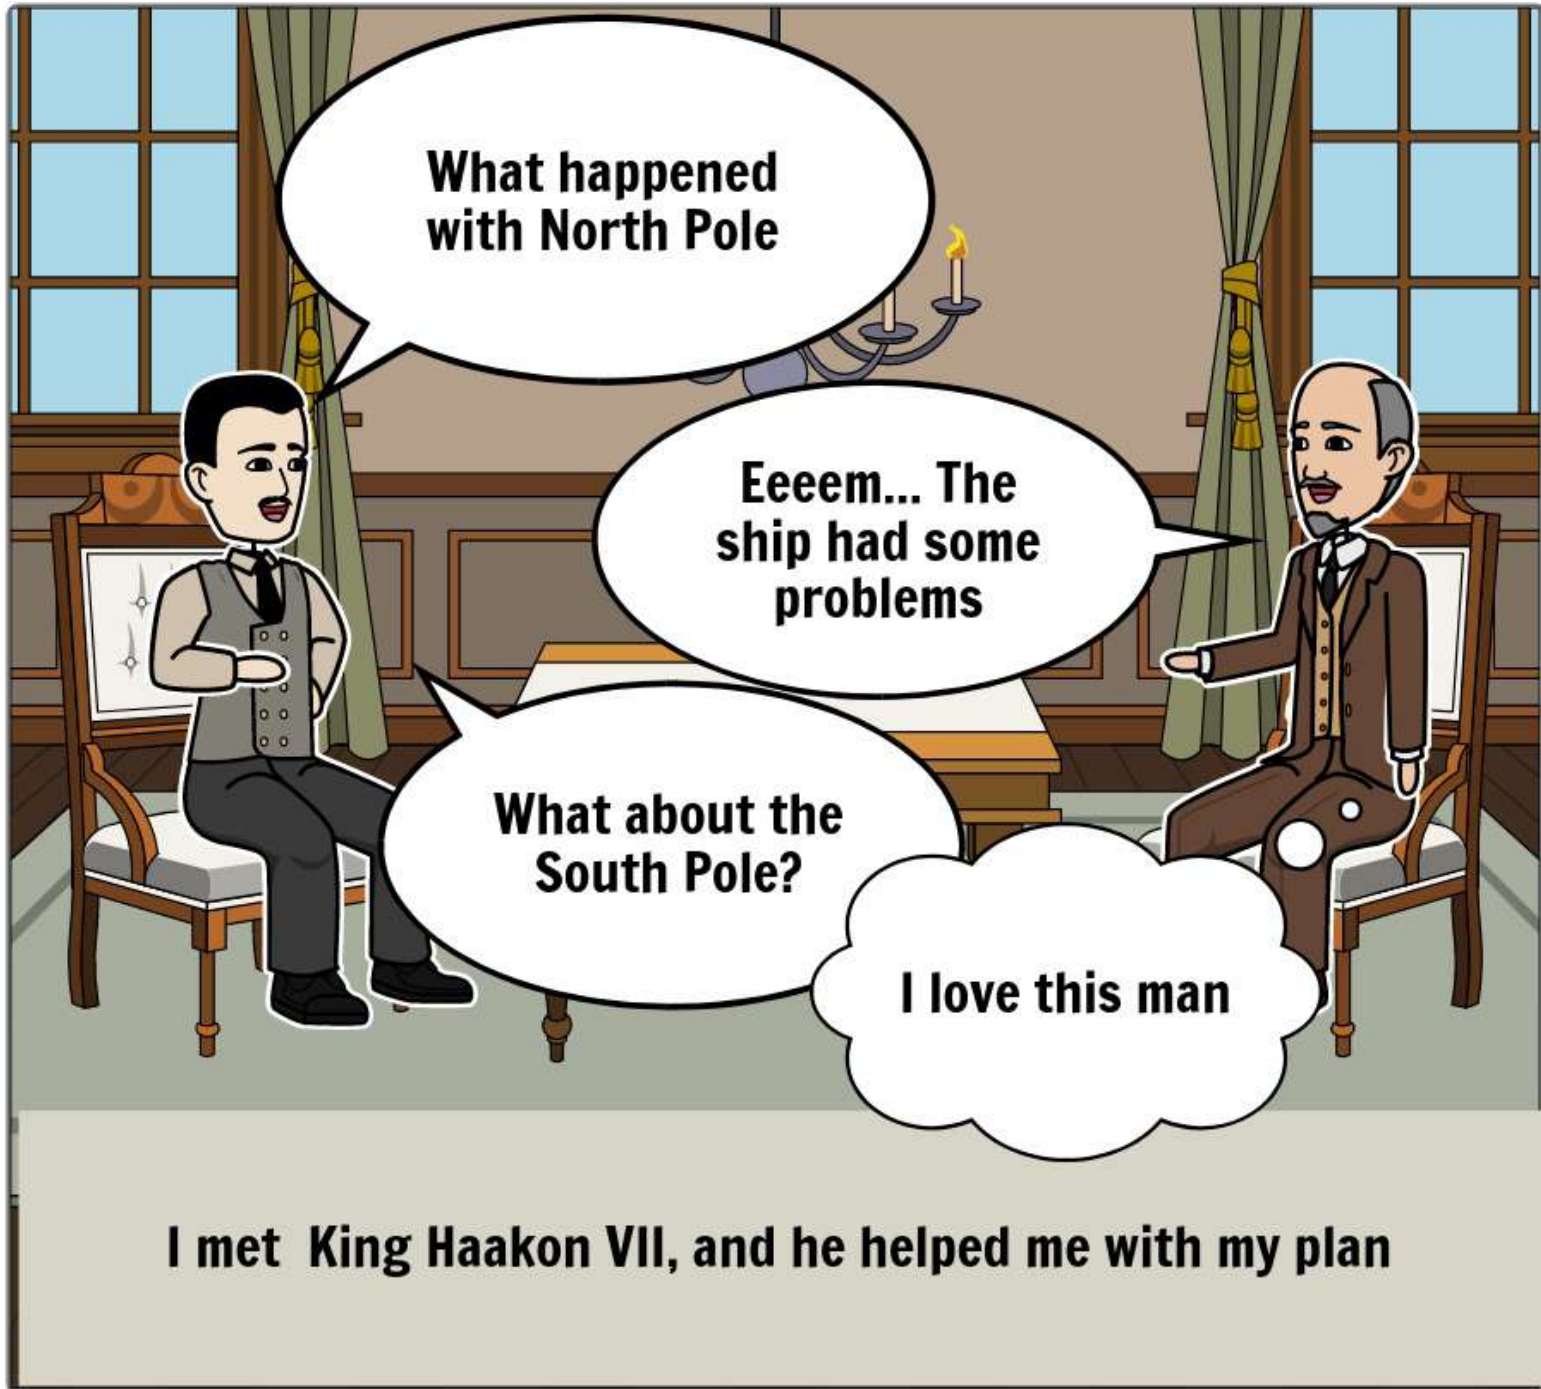

Come to conquer their planet

Good idea!

Thanks for reading

What happened with North Pole

Eeeem... The ship had some problems

What about the South Pole?

I love this man

A cartoon illustration of a man with short grey hair, wearing a light grey button-down shirt and dark trousers, sitting on a purple chair at a dark wooden table. He is looking towards the left with a serious expression. In the background, there is a window with a white frame and a light blue sky. To the left of the window, a large, torn piece of yellow paper is pinned to the wall, containing the text 'Captain Scott mustn't arrive the South Pole first'. The room has grey patterned wallpaper and a white baseboard.
